every moment that matters starts somewhere

Sometimes it begins with a late-night call. A quiet "hello?" met with a calm voice saying, "I'm here."

But just as often, the moment that matters most happens earlier – when a young person realises they're not alone.

It might be a poster. A teacher mentioning Kids Helpline. A parent, neighbour, or friend saying, "You can always talk to someone."

That moment of knowing is powerful. It gives young people permission to reach out.

And thanks to you, more children and young people than ever know Kids Helpline is there.

Every 90 seconds, a young person contacts Kids Helpline. Today alone, Kids Helpline will receive around 800 calls for help from children and young people. Behind each one is a story of courage, uncertainty, or simply needing someone to listen.

Because of our generous supporters, many of those calls will be answered.

But there are still young people who don't know where to turn.

That's why your support matters so much. You're not just helping answer calls and web chats, you're helping young people discover that someone will be there when they need it most.

And that moment can change everything.
